The interior of the building has been entirely taken out, and refitted expressly to suit the business of the present occupant.
Mr Ryan will keep the Manhattan House for the accommodation of Clubs and Parties. The best wines and liquors will be furnished from his cellar, having been carefully selected from the best stocks in Boston, a large portion of them being of the celebrated stocks long in the cellar of Mr Gallagher, late of the Exchange Coffee House. Rooms will be furnished for References and Courts Martial. Transient and permanent boarders will be accommodated in the best style known in the country and elegant apartments will be let, with or without board.
The Table d'Hôte will be supplied with every delicacy of the various seasons. Mr Ryan is confident that in this department, his own experience, added to the skill of the persons employed as waiters, will enable him to please the most fastidious epicures, both in respect to quality and style.
Those friends who have known the character of Mr Ryan's House in Boston, he is assured will find accommodations better, his means more ample, and his diligence quite as untiring; and from such strangers in this city, as love elegance in the various departments of his profession, he would beg the favor of an early call, with the full hope of giving satisfaction.
House was opened on the 15th June, 1837. epif j617

Religious worship will be regularly maintained every day, and as far as possible to prevent any company being received or bills will be settled on the Sabbath. No smoking allowed. The Hotel will be kept entirely on the Temperance principle, and while not a particle of intoxicating liquor will be sold or used, it will be a quiet house for gentlemen travelling with their families, as well as for others. CROWN GLASS.—The New England Crown Glass Company invite the attention of the public to their manufacture of Window Glass. They have taken the chambers over the store of Messrs Sumner & Hopkins, in School street, and are now opening an entire assortment of their glass for wholesale or retail.
The better to adapt their Glass to general use, they now divide it into 4 sections, viz: N. E. No. 1, Cambridge 1 and 2, and extra.
The N. E. No. 1, is composed principally of what was before termed 1st quality. The Cambridge No. 1, correspond to the former 2d quality and is altogether superior to the best of the German and other Cylinder Glass. Cambridge No. 2, is a good merchantable article for factories, stores, out houses, sky-light, green houses, and buildings of the less expensive kind, and is superior by weight to the common Glass. The 7 by 9, and 8 by 10 come at 4 and 5 cents per lb. by the box.
The extra is a small portion selected for front parlor windows—and from the greater purity of its color, and durability of its lustre, it will command a preference at the same price, over the Dutch plate glass.
By the certificate the purchaser may, by selecting the different qualities appropriate to the various parts of his building, obtain the glass at a great reduction from its former price—and it also supercedes the necessity for using the German Cylinder Glass, which disfigures so many of our otherwise handsome buildings.
There is no difference in the several selections in the color, thickness, and transparency of the Glass, nor in its external brilliancy; the Cambridge No. 1, therefore, is as appropriate for the higher stories of the best buildings, as the extra for the parlors.
The impression has heretofore been general that Crown Glass was too costly except for buildings of an expensive character, but by a reference to their price current, it will be found that the cost of the New England Crown Glass over the Cylinder Glass, when judiciously selected, will not exceed one half to one percent, on the cost of the building, according as it may stand alone or in the block—and there is no other manner in which an expenditure of five times the amount will add so much to the beautiful appearance of the building.
The New England Crown Glass also, by being of double thickness, is capable of withstanding violent winds, hail storms, severe jars, and cracking from contraction in cold weather—its thickness also, will make the rooms warmer by more effectually excluding the cold. Its use in the end is more economical independent of its greater beauty.
The Company have now on hand 8 to 10,000 boxes of the different sizes and sections, all of which has been opened and re-assorted with great care, and for all ordinary sizes an order can be executed within a week from its receipt.
They have also on hand, a few hundred boxes of various sizes of imperfect color, suitable for grinding and backs of buildings, which will be sold at a reduced price.
Gentlemen building, are requested to call and examine this beautiful article for themselves, before they make their contracts. By seeing a specimen of the various qualities they will be able to judge understandingly the kind adapted to their wants.
The office hours of the Agent in Boston are from 11 till 2, but in his absence Messrs SUMNER & HOPKINS are authorized to make sales.
J. S. HASTINGS, Agent.

Debilitated Females!
The complaints peculiar to the female sex of the community, have been long successfully treated by the administration of the Aromatic Pills, originally prescribed and compounded by Dr. Relfe. They cleanse the blood from those disorders which render the system impure, and restore the healthy habits, and effectually restore a free circulation, reform the irregular operations of the sanguiferous system, and rectify the disordered habits. The proprietor's confidence in the superior excellence of this equally innocent and powerful preparation, is founded on the most decisive testimony from many restored patients. He can assure this portion of the public, that when

DR. RELFE'S AROMATIC PILLS FOR FEMALES. are regularly taken according to the directions accompanying them, they restore and establish the desired healthy habits, and restore to the pallid countenance the natural glow of health and good spirits.

The Pills are an approved general remedy in cases of Obstructions—Debility—Hypochondria—Green Sickness—Giddiness—Indigestion of the Stomach—Headaches—Faintness—Pain of the Stomach—Shortness of breath upon every little motion—Sinking of the Spirits, and its consequences, a dejected countenance, and dislike for exercise and conversation.

Married ladies will find the Pills equally useful, except in cases of pregnancy, when they must not be taken; neither must they be taken by persons of hectic or consumptive habits. They may be used successfully by either men or women in all Hypochondria, Hysteria or Vapourish disorders. In all cases of this description, the Pills purify, invigorate, and rectify the disordered system.

POETRY.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

Ah! say, the fair Miranda cried,
Say where the abode of Love is found?
Pervading nature, I replied—
His influence spreads the world around.

When morning's arrowy beams arise,
He sparkles in the enlivening ray!
And blushes in the glowing skies,
As rosy evening fades away!

The summer winds that gently blow,
The flocks that bleat along the glades,
The nightingale that soft and low,
With music fills the listening shades!

But when that throne the god assumes,
Where his most powerful influences lie,
'Tis on Miranda's cheek he blooms,
And lightens from her radiant eyes.

For the Boston Morning Post.

MUSIC—STYLE—MRS WOOD, &c.

Mr Editor—The writer was pleased to see the opinion expressed by you, with regard to the article on Music, in the August No. of the Monthly Magazine. The writer of that article informs us, with much gravity, that the musical taste of our now, unrefined, and unsophisticated people has been most astonishingly improved of late by the introduction among us of a "lady-singer,"—which lady-singer, after having given her a sufficient degree of laudation, is careful to inform us is Mrs Wood. And this Mrs Wood, who has done more than any other woman in existence to corrupt the musical taste of our city—who has been the means of introducing and rendering fashionable among us, a miserable, conceited, namby-pamby, tricky, and meretricious style of singing, is held up to our admiring gaze as the great reformer and renovator of our musical taste—"pattern to the aged, lesson for the young." The best of it is, that on the very next page of the Monthly, the style of singing practised by Mrs Wood is condemned, ridiculed and denounced, as only in use among "second-rate performers." O! course the author knew nothing of music, or he would not have been betrayed into such an inconsistency, and in this respect, viz. (or as your friend Governor Everett would say, to wit, viz.) knowing nothing of music, he is like most of the admirers of Mrs Wood, whom it has been the lot of your deponent to mark. Had the writer, in the place of Mrs. Wood's name, put either that of Mrs Gibbs or Miss Watson, as the cause of any improvement which he may fancy to have taken place in our musical taste, he would have come nearer the truth. Not that I think any great improvement has taken place, or is likely to—for the taste of the many follows that of the few—the fashionables, par excellence—and the taste of the fashionables, "both now and ever, was and is"—the Gospel rule to the contrary notwithstanding—to quit that which is good, in order to cleave to that which is bad. Such being the case, it is not to be wondered at, that the affected, distorted and meretricious style of some female singers is popular among us, while the "native wood notes wild" of others, though warbled with a grace, second only to the lute of Orpheus—are suffered to waste their sweetness on the desert air.

LOVE, REVENGE, AND LOYALTY.

The Duke of Parma said to us:
"Napoleon's brothers were fond of the fair sex. One of them had visited, incognito, the wife of a captain of the imperial guard; the husband unexpectedly came in. The earnestness of the conversation prevented their hearing or seeing him. He surprised the guilty pair, and jealousy overcoming his prudence, he, without more to do, drew his sword, and was on the point of running them both through the body. The thoughtless waiting maid, who had given him admission, but was close at his heels, placed herself between the irritated husband and his victims, and not knowing how to parry the mortal blow: 'Wretch,' she exclaimed, 'this is the Emperor's brother!'"

"This announcement, confirmed by perceiving the physiognomy of —, who turned round, and was recognised, terrified the captain. He hesitated; his wife screamed out, people came to their rescue; — escaped, and shot himself up in another room. The new Valeran rushed towards the door, and roared out to the embryo god of war: 'You shall not quit this place until you have pledged your word of honor that you will give me satisfaction for this injury.' The butcher gallantly accepted the challenge; preliminaries were arranged for the meeting, which was to take place the next morning."

"The report of this adventure was transmitted, an hour afterwards, to the private cabinet of the minister of police. His Excellency ordered horses to be put to a carriage, reached the Tuilleries in all haste, obtained admittance to his Imperial Majesty, and requested his orders."

"Why! whosoever has drawn the wine must drink it. To insult a captain of my old guard, a surly fellow, too. I know the whole story; he is a very brave man."

"But, Sir, a brother of the Emperor cannot accept a challenge!"

"Very true! but, by all that is bad, why did he not address himself to the wife of one of our Generals. Ninety out of a hundred would have said to him: Many thanks to you, Prince; when will your Imperial Highness condescend to return? But an obscure captain does not understand matters in the same way as a courtier. Men of their class are supporters of the throne, but not the Prince's friends. Let the injured husband be ordered to attend me."

"Then, as if regretting that he had indulged in so severe a sarcasm, he laid hold of the minister's button-hole, and said to him, in a bantering tone of voice: 'When I spoke of those who would ask no better than to re-enact the part of the Sieur-Bureau, of happy memory, I was wrong in only alluding to military men; I ought to have included a civil household, even the council of state, and the ministers to boot.'"

"The minister of police proceeded to execute his order. The captain presented himself with a pale and dejected countenance, bearing, however, the impress of inflexible severity."

"Captain," said Napoleon, "I sent for you to beseech you would grant to your old general the pardon of his guilty brother."

"Ah! Sir, these words harrow up my soul."

"I can well understand that blood only can wipe away so deep an injury; but you would have to slay the brother of Napoleon... of your sovereign! This would not be allowed; neither would you go through the jugglery of cork balls... in short, you have been made to enter what you formerly inflicted on some one else! The law of repris is... bear with it!"

"But, Sir?"

"But, captain, have you understood me? I forbid the duel; and I, in person, demand the pardon of my brother... if this does not satisfy you... Zounds! you will have to deal with me; let us draw, and settle the matter between us!"

"The officer burst into tears like a child, and fell at the feet of the Emperor, who hastened to raise him from the ground."

"Ah! Sir," said he, "though you do not repair my injured honor, you distinguish me above all earthly mortals. I release your brother from his pledge; the minister of war will be pleased to accept my resignation."

"Assuredly not, captain; he shall do no such thing; heroes, such as you, should only die on the field of battle."

"Immediately after this conversation, the captain departed to join his regiment. No mark of favor was granted him at the moment; but care was taken to promote him as soon as his right of seniority gave him a title to advancement. The Emperor was so solicitous on this subject that the captain was, in 1814, a colonel, and a commander of the legion of honor."

"Napoleon then sent for his brother, whom he reprimanded, and at last said to him, with a smile—

4th—Resolved, That gold and silver coin, constitute the only constitutional standard for the exchangeable value of property; and the issuing, or continuing as a general currency, Bank paper, which is not redeemable at all times in the precious metals, is unjust and unequal in its effects upon the people, and subversive of the best interests of the community.

5th—Resolved, That, a well regulated and well guarded system of Bank credit, by which bills at all times redeemable in gold and silver, are made to supply the business wants of the community, constitutes one of the peculiar characteristics of a free people, and is essentially necessary in promoting their prosperity and happiness.

6th—Resolved, That the great object of civil government—the promotion of the happiness of the people cannot be obtained in the United States, without a well regulated system of protection to all the great business interests in which our citizens are engaged, and that as the system of credit upon import duties, has a tendency to encourage excessive importations, and to produce ruinous fluctuations in other branches of business, the adoption of the system of requiring cash for duties, would prevent much of the embarrassment to which the country is exposed, and would be of essential importance to all the great interests of the United States.

7th—Resolved, That the importations of silks during the last year amount to more than twenty-three millions of dollars, the promotion of its growth in this country by the bestowment of such liberal bounties as would secure its cultivation, would be of the highest importance in diminishing the causes of our foreign debt and in promoting the agricultural interests of every State in the Union.

8th—Resolved, That the avails of the public lands after making suitable appropriation for education and improvements in the States where they are situated, ought to be applied to the promotion of objects of a public character in the several States according to some just ratio.

9th—Resolved, That the time has arrived when it is the imperative duty of the Congress of the United States to exercise their constitutional power of establishing a uniform system of Bankruptcy throughout the United States.

10—Resolved, That the citizens of the United States are united in one common interest and the various classes and professions are mutually dependent upon each other, and that any effort to excite one class against another, to divide society into factions, would be subversive of the fundamental principles of society, and tend to destroy the happiness of all.

11—Resolved, That in the conflicts of mere partisans, contending for the triumph of party success, and subjecting every public measure to the supervision of party discipline, we discover principles subversive of personal independence and ruinous to the best interests of the Country.

12—Resolved, That the substantial blessings which a bountiful Providence is now showering upon the fields of our agricultural brethren, warn us as it were in the delusive mazes of speculation with which all branches of trade have been mixed up to return to the practice of industry and economy, and to the enjoyment of their solid rewards.

BOSTON MORNING POST.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 9, 1837.

Extract from a letter dated

"Hampden County, August 1, 1837.

Mr. Greene—I am glad to see that the Post, Statesman, and the other democratic papers throughout the Commonwealth, maintain so steady and firm a tone of confidence in the final success of democracy in Massachusetts—may you all hold fast to the good faith—it will yet work out for you an exceeding weight of glory. I am an old man, and say what you, and most of your co-laborers, have only heard of. In 1800 democracy and its supporters were denounced with more bitterness than they are now—the man who owned the pew behind mine at that time, sold it because he said that he would not have a democrat so near him, and he was not the only instance where a federalist removed farther from the altar of Truth, to avoid coming in contact with old fashioned republicanism. I think the democracy of the present day comes nearer to the old Jeffersonian democracy, than the democracy of any period since that Sage and Philosopher left public life—the federalists perceive this. In Munroe's time they thought that we were forgetting our principles and experience in the "era of good feelings"—and in the "bargain and intrigue" election of John Q. Adams, they felt sure of our utter prostration—but, thank Heaven, they were mistaken, and the triumph of Andrew Jackson over Mr Adams mortified them more, if possible, than his triumph over Pakenham.

So long as we can have such men as Jackson and Van Buren for our Presidents, the people may be assured that they will not be robbed of their rights without being warned of their danger, and if they are too cowardly or too lazy to protect them when they know they are encroached upon, they deserve to be slaves.

I hope the Convention at Worcester will be well attended. I understand that the Western portion of the state will be fully represented—much will depend upon its proceedings—I hope they will be firm, temperate and honorable. You must all speak together there, and if you speak right—and I have no doubt but you will—you will aid the good cause by your voice in every town in the Commonwealth."

Rhode Island.—We hope that the friends of democracy will go unitedly to the Polls on the day of election, and give their undivided support to the regularly nominated candidates of their party. The whigs are encouraged by the late events in Maine to hope for similar results in Rhode Island; but we have too much confidence in the sagacity and vigilance of the republicans there, to believe them capable of injuring the interests of the party throughout the whole action to gratify personal animosity or private pique. "All for principles—nothing for men." "Rhody" will come out bright, we are confident.

The Mail papers of yesterday morning bring additional returns from the "far West." The election of Messrs. Gholson and Claiborne (democratic candidates for Congress) in Mississippi, is placed nearly beyond a doubt, and by a handsome majority, says the New York Times.

The papers in mentioning the causes of the great unpopularity of the Duke of Cumberland, do not allude to the principal one, viz: that he was suspected of having designs upon the life of the Princess Victoria, some years ago, and that the Duchess of Kent expressed great horror and fear of him in consequence.

Some of the Abolitionists are taking very exceptional means to aid their cause. A woman, a few days since, stopped a little boy in this city, only twelve years of age, and persuaded him to sign an abolition petition. Such occurrences are by no means rare, and display a lack of moral honesty altogether inconsistent with that sanctified purity claimed by the abolitionists, generally.

At a regular meeting of the Dingbat Society, held at Owl's Head on the 1st inst, Mr Coleman of the New England House, was chosen Secretary for four years from the 20th of September next.

The Salem Advertiser thinks that it was treating Mr J. Q. Adams very uncivilly to elect Gen Jackson to the Presidency over him.

We have received the first number of the Burlington (Wisconsin) Gazette, a very neatly printed and well filled journal.

Letter to the Farmers of Massachusetts, on the subject of an Agricultural Survey of the State, by the authority of the Legislature. By Henry Colman, Commissioner for such Survey.—This pamphlet is a Circular Letter addressed individually to different farmers in all the towns of the Commonwealth with a view of obtaining their advice and co-operation in accomplishing the survey. By the Resolve it was made the duty of the Commissioner, "To collect accurate information of the state and condition of the agriculture of the Commonwealth, and every subject connected with it; point out the means of improvement; and make a detailed report thereof, with as much exactness as circumstances will admit." The principal objects to which Mr Colman's inquiries are directed are the following: The nature of the soil in different parts of the State. The climate. The usual time of ploughing, planting, harvesting; the occurrence of early frosts; the length of winter; the average temperature; and the quantity of sun or rain in any year. Products. Rotation of Crops. Diseases of Crops. Weeds and methods of extermination. Manures. Live Stock. Dairy produce. Farm Buildings. Orchards and Gardens. Manufactures as connected with Agriculture, &c. &c. We hope that Mr Colman will receive all due encouragement in his undertaking which must necessarily be very arduous—since it is his object to visit every town in the State, and all the principal farms in each of those towns, for the purpose of gathering all the local information that can be procured. We look upon the appointment of this survey as an important era in the history of New England Agriculture. There is very considerable local information respecting the management of farms and of stocks which such a survey will be the means of spreading abroad for the general advantage of the community.

Old Standards.—There is a set of old people who are fast disappearing from the face of the earth, and who, on account of their remembrance of the circumstances of our revolutionary times, are the most interesting historical companions among us. Let us cherish their society and make much of them while they live. There are now remaining but a very small number of them—and they have become extremely precious by their rarity. On every Fourth of July where there is a village celebration, we usually observe a number of these old men gathered together—and the number diminishes sensibly every year. Soon will they be utterly annihilated. They are now the salt of society wherever they live—and their conversation is better calculated to cherish and keep alive the patriotic spirit that distinguished our fathers than the best orations that can be made. The times in which they passed their youth were calculated to store their minds with interesting facts which no later period can supply. All these facts are as valuable as they are entertaining. Almost every old person who lived in our revolutionary times, is acquainted with some matters of fact which are not recorded in history, and which may, nevertheless, afford to us a useful political lesson. Long may these old standards remain among us—and as long as they live may we cherish and honor them.

Explanation.—A satisfactory misrepresentation of facts.

Narrow Escape.—The Raleigh, North Carolina, Star, of the 21st inst. contains the following:—

"One of the most remarkable instances of providential escape from death by lightning that ever came to our knowledge, occurred in Graville county on the 18th ult. Several gentlemen, returning from a public meeting, were caught in a light shower of rain, accompanied with considerable lightning and thunder; which, however, bore the appearance of clearing up, when they arrived at the house of Mrs Blackwell, where they had determined to call. The Rev John P. Lemay, who was foremost, tied his horse at the gate, and walked to the house, a distance of not more than 30 or 40 paces; leaving his son, Mr L. A. Lemay, and Mr William Levister sitting on their horses, the former close by the side of the horse that was tied, and the latter a few feet in his rear; but scarcely had he seated himself, after reaching the house, when he turned his eyes towards the gate, heard a tremendous peal of thunder, and saw his horse fall at the same instant. He ran out immediately to the spot, and found both his horses, valuable animals, prostrate and lifeless—the one rode by his son having been struck dead from under him; but the young man himself miraculously escaped with but little injury, though the animal on which he sat was killed so dead, not one muscle moved that could be discovered! And though hurled himself a distance of nearly twenty steps, where he was found on his feet, nearly in a state of insensibility!! Mr Levister was knocked flat on his horse, but was not seriously injured. Whilst reviving from the shock, both complained of a sensation as if the head was bursting, with severe pain in the back of the neck; from which, however, they were soon relieved. A tree close by was also struck."

Gen Lamar, the Vice President of Texas, is received with as much distinction in Georgia, as Mr Webster was at the West.

The steamer Bangor will start for Gloucester at 9 o'clock this morning, and return in the evening. It will be a pleasant excursion—let us all go.

Municipal.—At a meeting of the Mayor and Aldermen on Monday afternoon:—

Quarterly reports of the City Clerk, Hay-weighters, Superintendent of Burial Grounds, Superintendent of Public Lands—received, read and sent down.

The Mayor stated that he had received official notice of the existence of the Plague in Smyrna—ordered thereupon that notice of quarantine on vessels from that port be given in the papers.

Petitions of E. W. Perry and others, that Cross street may be repaired—of the Primary School Committee for District No. 6, that the Ward Room in the Winthrop School House be fitted up and applied to the accommodation of an additional school in said district—of Fowle & Brewer and others, that Washington street may be widened by cutting off part of the wooden building next south of the Washington Coffee House—of G. C. Shattuck, Jr., to be paid for land taken to widen Hanover street—of Winslow Lewis and others, that the common sewer in Washington street be repaired—severally referred—of Elizabeth Jones, that a resolve of the Board of Aldermen directing Cross street to be widened, be rescinded—Aldermen Quincy, Hunting, and Wells.

The committee on public scales reported the following order, which was passed:

Ordered, That the committee on the public scales be authorized to cause the present balances to be removed, and others put in their places, provided it can be done at a cost not over $500 for each balance.

The committee on the petition of Charles Henshaw and others, that a new street be opened from Somerset street to Bowdoin street, reported a resolution providing that if the said petitioners will cause said street to be laid out and constructed at their own expense, then the city will accept said street as a public highway—accepted.

Licenses granted to the Tremont and Lion Theatres. Rules and regulations for the government of the Fire Department, read and approved.

Ordered, That the committee on lamps cause lamps to be placed on First street, between the two South Boston Bridges.

The Mayor, Aldermen Gurney, Farnam, and Wetmore, were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the annual school dinner.

Shocking Occurrence.—St Louis, July 28.—Yesterday evening about 6 o'clock, as the steamboat Chariton had just put out and proceeded a small way up stream, one of her boilers burst, by which 9 or 10 persons were more or less badly scalded—three were shot by the explosion over the starboard side of the boat into the Mississippi, one of whom was reported to have been drowned. We could not, however, discover the truth of this report with sufficient accuracy, and trust that it is not the case. As we hurried down from the office to the river, upon hearing the noise of the explosion, we first saw one poor fellow, a black man, just brought to shore in a boat which picked him up—he was badly scalded and bleeding. Two white men had been taken ashore a little higher up the landing, one of them shockingly scalded; the skin and flesh of his face and every part of his person that was exposed, were crisped and curled on his body, and the mucus and other liquids of his frame forced out of his mouth, nostrils and ears—he fared worst of all we believe. On the boiler deck of the Chariton, lay two men, one of them the Engineer, badly scalded, the latter especially—they were the only persons we saw attended to, and applications of oil, &c. were made to relieve them. Four or five more were injured, but not so severely as the above. Only one passenger, a deck one, was scalded.

Byron's faithful domestic, Wm. Fletcher, passed, a short time since through the insolvent court. No one had the kindness to oppose the man whose fortune it was to close the eyes of the greatest of modern poets, and assuage with his attentions, in the distant land of the stranger, the dying moments of the brightest genius that has been struck in our time, of the literary hemisphere. His debts were £450. He had, for some time, kept a lodging house and Italian warehouse in Berkeley Square. The Mon Mrs Leigh, sister to the poet, had granted him £70 per annum, but it has since been stopped. She paid however the costs of the present application. Where was to say nothing of the wife.—N. Y. Star.

Commencement at Dartmouth.—The degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on the Rev Mr Hopkins, President of Williams College, and that of Doctor of Laws on Joseph Bell, Esq. of Haverhill, N. H. and the Hon Joel Parker, Esq. of the Justice of the Superior Court. The discourse before the Theological Society, by the Rev Mr Folsom, of Franconstown, was of a high order; the Consilio by Mr Clements, of Chester, was marked with sound thoughts. The address before the Literary Society, by Mr Hillard, of Boston, a graduate of Harvard, was listened to for an hour and a half, with profound attention by a delighted audience. The P. B. K. Oration, by Professor Cleveland, was all that could be expected from a man who stands foremost among the scientific of the eastern country.—N. Y. Gazette.

An American Princess married.—Amalgamation.—The honorable Levi Gilman, a Justice of the Supreme Court of Missouri, has recently married an Indian Princess, brought up in the family of Theodore Davis, Esq. of Gibson's Creek, in that State. She is the daughter of Ke-oh-sher-sha, or the Black Bear, a Fox Chief. Her father, since dead, had placed her with Mr Davis, to learn the art of "talking on paper." Mr Davis having no daughter, and being wealthy, sent NYDIA, as she was called, into New Jersey, where she received a superior education. She is said to be witty and agreeable, beautiful and accomplished; speaks French fluently, and has all the appearance of one of the far-famed brunette damsels of Andalusia. So says the St Louis Observer. Here is the foundation for another Pocahontas royal line for Missouri.—N. Y. Star.

Daring attempt to set fire.—On Tuesday night between 11 and 12 o'clock, an attempt was made to burn the building in Cornhill Court, occupied by M. W. Hopkins. The incendiary entered in the rear, and set fire to some champagne baskets filled with straw and other combustible materials, which had been placed in the sink. When discovered the fire had made considerable headway. The sink and the wood work around it was much burnt and the fire in one place burnt into the ceiling; it was extinguished without a general alarm. The heat was very intense, and the glass in the windows was much broken. An attempt was made to set fire to the same building about a week since.—Briggs's Bulletin.

Scene in the Rialto.—Duelling.—A duel this morning—did you hear of it?

No—who were the parties?

Two coopers.

Two coopers?—Well, I suppose they were considerably bungled up?

I don't know—but they must have been a couple of hog's-heads, or they would never have thought of staving bullets into each other.

It is certainly worse than a case of the whooping-cough; and adze (adds) another melancholy proof to the folly of mankind.—N. O. Picayune.

We are happy to learn that a subscription is commenced among the Insurance Companies and Merchants of this city, by which every Seaman of the port will be supplied with a copy of the Temperance Text Book—a publication that will, in our opinion, promote the temperance reformation, wherever circulated and read. No one familiar with the disastrous consequences sometimes attending the use of intoxicating drinks on ship-board, will question the policy of this instance of liberality towards the seamen.—Daily.

Captain Loring from Turks Island, states that two vessels had been cast away near that place having provisions on board; and that so far from the inhabitants being in a state of starvation, salted provisions could not be sold for the cost in the United States, and the lowest price for salt was 111-2 cents per bushel, for bills on the United States, or 10 cents per bushel, for specie; in addition to export duty.

We commend the following paragraph to the attention of the Courier the next time it feels philosophical:—

"Limited opportunities of practice is sometimes the consequence of parsimony; but it is parsimony in the very worst place."—Albion Magazine.

An eloquent passage from Mr Rantoul's oration at Worcester, and the Resolutions adopted by the Convention of Business Men assembled at Philadelphia, may be found on the First Page.
